

Education & Professional Development — Full Proposal Template

Structure

01 — Why We Are Reaching Out

[Brand Name]'s programmes and expertise are clearly at a high level. After our conversation, it became clear that the brand and digital presence need to evolve to match the quality of the education and support the company's growth into [new markets / corporate training / online delivery / expansion].

02 — What We Observed

- Brand identity — logo, typography, colour, and how the system performs across digital, print, and physical environments
- Website — programme presentation, enrollment flow, outcome showcases, testimonials, mobile experience
- Programme/course branding — visual consistency across the offering portfolio
- Marketing materials — brochures, flyers, social posts, email campaigns, advertising
- Corporate sales materials — partnership decks, training proposals, one-pagers, case studies
- Learning materials — course design, presentation templates, certificates, workbooks
- Competitive positioning — brand comparison with peers in the space

03 — The Business Implication

The quality of the education is the foundation, but the brand determines who discovers it, how they perceive it, and what they are willing to invest. A professional brand system increases enrollment, justifies premium pricing, and opens doors to corporate clients who evaluate providers partly on the quality of their presentation.

04 — Our Hypothesis

[Brand Name] has built genuine expertise and earned a reputation among existing students. The brand has not been built to carry that reputation to new audiences, new markets, or corporate decision-makers. The opportunity is to build a brand system that makes the quality of the education self-evident at every touchpoint.
